Cutler and Gross aviators, US$450, from J. Crew. jcrew.com

the aviator

BY CATHERINE DUNWOODY

TREND WATCH Aviator sunglasses were originally made by Ray-Ban for the U.S. Air Force during the Second World War. Throughout the decades, they've stayed stylish, in the '60s with the hippies, in the '80s on Tom Cruise in Top Gun, and the ladies love 'em too — celebs Jennifer Aniston and Cameron Diaz have been spotted wearing them everywhere the paparazzi is.

HOW TO WEAR IT Like most sunglasses, aviators come in different sizes, shapes, colours and variance on the classic teardrop style. I like the wire-framed ones I've gathered here, and find the shape wearable and sexy on most faces.

WHERE TO GET IT Sunglass shops, optical boutiques and online.

Fashion label Theory's aviators, $160, at optical retailers across B.C. westgroup.com

Classics with a touch of orange, by Ray-Ban, $166 at Watch It!

Aviators by Attitude, a steal at $24.99, at Sears. sears.ca

"Serpico" by Smith, $140, at Watch It! Coquitlam Centre. watchit.ca
