She Always Makes the Right Choices

“My wardrobe is pretty monochromatic with an occasional bold color so I like glasses that add a splash of color like bright pink, citron green, purple, orange. I think of glasses as an accessory but I hate when a designer's name or logo adorns the frames. And I can't stand when the temples have ornamentation all over. I especially can't stand metallic ornamentation such as circles or cutouts. I like simplicity.

It's similar to my attitude toward clothes. I love Eileen Fisher's clothing. She doesn't need her name plastered all over her clothes. The quality of the materials and the cut of the clothes are what you notice. Her style is simple and very recognizable.”

Social Studies Curriculum Coordinator

“When it comes to Rx eyeglasses, I hate all those jeweled accents and logos. I don't mind funky, but for how much money a pair of glasses can cost, I want a pair that's not going to look dated in a couple of years. For sunglasses (when I'm wearing contacts), I love the big Jackie O styles!”
