FASHION EXTRA - OH, CANADA!

If world travel isn't your thing, consider staying close to home for summer-attire inspiration. In celebration of the time of year marking Canada's birth, we present some of the best from the country's ever-growing menswear movement.

—DEREK DOTTO

1. This button-up with porcelain buttons by Metsa is piece-died, so every shirt has its own unique shade. There's no cutting corners with these guys. $150, available at metsadesign.com

2. Canadian label Joe Fresh, headed by retail guru Joe Mimran, has mastered the art of cheap chic. Case in point: this cotton tee with vintage photo. $12, available at Joe Fresh

3. Vancouver's Wings+Horns reminds us how hip the West Coast really is. But you don't have to be heading to Kits Beach to rock these slim cargo shorts. $255, available at nomadshop.net

4. After some 40 years in footwear, John Fluevog is an institution. The basic oxford, this season in suede, is the tip of the iceberg. $215, available at John Fluevog

5. All of Esency's jewellery including this leather, calcite and gold-plated brass necklace, is handmade on Toronto's trendy Queen Street West. $90, available at esency.ca

6. Wilk Watchworks, based in Scarborough, Ontario, exposes the inner workings of time with this skeletonized watch. $950, available at wilkdesigns.com

7. Montreal's WestGroupe broadens its horizons with Evatik Sunwear, launching a limited line of luxury sunglasses this year, including these mirrored aviators. $235, available at evatik.com

8. Outclass redefines the fusion of workwear into casual attire with such pieces as this belt, made from distressed dead-stock vintage leather. $85, available at outclass.ca

9. The Hudson's Bay Company Signature Series, designed by a team in Toronto, pays homage to the retailer's fur-trading origins with this canvas flatpack with leather detailing. $175, available at the Bay, thebay.com

10. Show your national pride with this vintage-inspired handmade wool flag by Toronto-based 18 Walts. For all you traditionalists, it comes in red, too. $150, available at 18walts.com
